

Evaluating your Website Source

Does your website measure up?

- Does the site represent a reputable organization? Does it have a .edu, .gov or .org at the end of the URL?
- Is the site current? Is there a date on the Page? Is currency of the site important to your topic?
- Is there an author listed or an About Us or Contact Us link? Does the organization have expertise on the subject?
- Does the site list its sources? Does it link to other reputable sources?
- Does the site reveal a bias or only one point of view?
- Is the site trying to sell something? Are there ads on the page?